PREFACE

The Inventory of Federal Archives in the States is one of the products of the work of the Survey of Federal Archives, which operated as a nationwide project of the Works Progress Administration from January 1, 1936 to June 30, 1937, and has been continued in Massachusetts since that date as a state project of that Administration.

The plan for the organization of the Inventory is as follows: Series I consists of reports on the administration of the Survey, acknowledgments, and general discussions of the location, condition, and content of federal archives in the states. Succeeding series contain the detailed information secured by workers of the Survey, in inventory form, a separate series number being assigned to each of the executive departments (Except the Department of State) and other major units of the Federal Government. Within each series No. 1 is a general introduction to the field organization and records of the governmental agency concerned; the succeeding numbers contain the inventory proper, separate numbers being assigned to each state in alphabetical order. Thus, in each series, the inventory for Alabama is No. 2, that for Arizona No. 3, that for Arkansas No. 4, etc.

For each local office information regarding each series, or unit of related records, is presented in the following order: title, inclusive dates ("to date" indicating an open file at the time the information was secured), general description of informational content, description of the system of filing or indexing (if any), a statement of frequency and purpose of use, form of the record itself (bound volumes, sheets in folders, etc.), linear footage, description of the containers, physical condition of the records (not stated if satisfactory), location by room number or other identifying information, and finally, the number of the Form 58SA on which this information was originally recorded by a Survey worker and from which it was abstracted for the Inventory. This form is on file in The National Archives. When it contains substantial information on addenda sheets which has not been included in the mimeographed abstract, indication of this is given by use of the reference "See addenda."

In Massachusetts the work of the Survey has been under the direction of Mr. J.W. McElroy. This inventory of the records of the Department of Justice in Massachusetts was prepared in the Boston office of the Survey, and was edited before final typing by Mr. A.R. Kooker of the Washington office.

INTRODUCTION

The Department of Justice was established by the act of June 22, 1870 with the Attorney General as its head. Prior to 1870 the Attorney General was a member of the President's Cabinet, but not the head of a department, the office having been created under authority of the act of September 24, 1789. Not until May 31, 1918, however, were the legal offices of the various Government agencies consolidated in the Department of Justice, as a war time measure.

The chief purposes of the Department of Justice are to provide means for the enforcement of the Federal laws, to furnish legal counsel in Federal cases, and to construct the laws under which other departments act. It conducts all suits in the Supreme Court in which the United States is concerned, supervises the Federal penal institutions, and investigates and detects violations against Federal laws. It represents the Government in legal matters generally, rendering legal advice and opinions, upon request, to the President and to the heads of the executive departments. The Attorney General appears in the United States Supreme Court in cases of exceptional importance and supervises and directs the activities of the United States attorneys and marshals in the various judicial districts.

ADMINISTRATIVE ASSISTANT TO THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

BOSTON

UNITED STATES ATTORNEY

Post Office and Court House, Post Office Square

The office of the United States attorney was established in 1870 as a subdivision of the Department of Justice. Its origin can be traced to the Attorney General who has been a member of the President's Cabinet since 1789 although not the head of a department. The United States attorney represents the government in all civil and criminal cases tried before Federal courts, receives complaints, and presents evidence to grand juries for indictments.

So far as can be ascertained the Boston office followed the several moves of the district court since its establishment in 1789. At present it occupies rooms on the 11th floor of the new Post Office and Court House Building. The personnel comprises one United States attorney, twelve assistant United States attorneys, and thirteen clerks.

All the active records are accessible and well cared for. The inactive material accumulated by this agency has been carelessly stored in an unoccupied file room.

UNITED STATES MARSHAL

Post Office and Court House, Post Office Square

The office of United States marshal was created in 1789, by the same act of Congress that established the courts. Usually, the marshal's office was in the same location as the court itself.

United States marshals are appointed for each judicial district of the United States by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, for a term of four years, or until successors are appointed. Marshals and their deputies have the same powers in executing the laws of the United States that sheriffs have in executing the laws of a State. Their duties include the serving of executions and writs for the courts to which they are attached. In the first district, the marshal is assisted by 19 deputies. In the early period (1789-1813) quarters were maintained in the Exchange Coffee House, Congress, State and Devonshire Streets. In 1813 the office moved to the New Court House, Court Square, where it functioned until 1855. The Parkman Shore House in Bowdoin Square was headquarters from that time until 1921, when it was established at Young's Hotel, Court Square. Since 1932 the offices have been in rooms 1510-1518 of the new Post Office and Court House Building.

Some of the older records of this agency have been lost, probably while moving. Most of the records, however, are carefully filed in the district court storage room on the 14th floor, and the earlier papers will be found filed with the original papers of the cases to which they refer. Routine office records are periodically destroyed upon proper authorization.

FEDERAL BUREAU OF INVESTIGATION

FEDERAL BUREAU OF INVESTIGATIONBOSTONFIELD OFFICE

Post Office and Court House, Post Office Square

The Federal Bureau of Investigation was established in 1908. It traces its origin to a force of examiners, borrowed from various departments, and organized by the Attorney General in the 1800's to audit official accounts, investigate official records, etc. In 1873 the Attorney General requested an appropriation from Congress so that this force might be set up as an independent unit; in 1899 the appropriation was granted. At present the Bureau has general charge of the investigation of offenses against Federal laws, except counterfeiting, narcotics, and other matters not within the investigative jurisdiction of the Department of Justice.

The Boston office was established at 45 Milk Street in 1912 and remained there until 1919 when it moved to 7 Water Street. In 1933 it moved to the New Post Office and Court House Building and in the early fall of 1936 leased rooms 950 to 955 of the Atlantic National Bank Building at 10 Post Office Square.

The staff comprises a special agent in charge and as many Federal agents as the volume of business at the local office requires.

All of its records, carefully preserved and intact, are considered confidential and no information whatsoever is divulged concerning their content. Records prior to 1933 have been transferred to the Washington office.
